

Evidence-Based Advocacy for Trade Unions Training Course

Professional Development Training Course Outline

Category	Trade Unions	Duration	5 Days
Base Fee	$1,500 USD	Delivery Mode	Online / On-site Hybrid

Course Introduction

Evidence-Based Advocacy for Trade Unions Training Course equips labor representatives with the analytical tools to leverage big data, socio-economic metrics, and legal precedents to advocate for decent work. By grounding demands in empirical evidence, unions can effectively challenge algorithmic bias and navigate the complexities of the gig economy, ensuring that the "just transition" remains centered on worker protections rather than mere corporate efficiency.

Beyond traditional collective bargaining, this training focuses on institutional experimentation and the use of digital cooperative platforms as tools for worker emancipation. Participants will learn to synthesize quantitative labor market data with qualitative "worker voice" narratives to build compelling cases for policy reform. This holistic approach ensures that union strategies are not only resilient against labour alienation but are also capable of shaping the future of work through economic democracy and solidaristic prosperity.
