

Gender and Public Policy Training Course

Professional Development Training Course Outline

Category	Gender Studies	Duration	10 Days
Base Fee	$3,000 USD	Delivery Mode	Online / On-site Hybrid

Course Introduction

In today's rapidly evolving policy landscape, integrating gender perspectives into public policy is crucial for achieving inclusive, equitable, and sustainable development. Gender and Public Policy Training Course empowers policymakers, civil society leaders, and development practitioners with the knowledge, analytical tools, and practical frameworks to mainstream gender considerations across policy design, implementation, and evaluation. This course emphasizes evidence-based strategies, intersectional analysis, and innovative approaches to address systemic gender inequalities in governance, public administration, and legislative processes.

Participants will gain the capacity to identify gender gaps, develop inclusive policies, and measure the impact of interventions using global best practices and localized case studies. By bridging theory with practice, the training fosters leadership, advocacy, and policy innovation, equipping stakeholders to drive transformative change in sectors ranging from healthcare and education to economic development and social protection.
